

FIRE ON SHIP DUE TO AN EXPLOSION

Fifty Passengers and Crew Killed in Outbreak.

LIFEBOATS WERE SMASHED.

Two Boats That Got Away From Burning Liner Still Missing—Last Appeal From Captain Inch—Able Seaman Rescued Sole Survivor on Carmania. Reports 523 Saved.

On Board the North-German Lloyd Steamship Grosser Kurfuerst (by wireless telegraph to Cape Race), Oct. 14.—With 105 survivors on board from the steamship Voltorno, burned to the water's edge during a gale in mid-Atlantic and abandoned last Friday, the Grosser Kurfuerst is approaching New York.

The passengers and crew of the Grosser Kurfuerst witnessed thrilling scenes when their vessel, called by distress signals from the Voltorno, arrived in her vicinity. They found the Voltorno burning fiercely and her crew and passengers helpless in the heavy seas. It was learned by wireless messages from the flaming vessel that the fire had been started by an explosion in the forward hold at 7 o'clock on Thursday morning, ship's time.

On the arrival of the Grosser Kurfuerst the flames from the hold of the Voltorno were leaping eighty feet into the air through the hatchway, and it was learned that fifty or more of the Voltorno's crew and steerage passengers had been killed by the explosion and the fire.

Six boats were lowered immediately afterward from the Voltorno's davits, and three of them, still empty, were smashed to pieces against the vessel's side. Another, with forty passengers on board, capsized while being launched, and all were lost. The two others, with from sixty to eighty passengers on board, got away, but apparently were lost.

Altogether twelve steamships were brought by the wireless distress signals within hail of the Voltorno. The Cunard liner Carmania was the first of these. She reached the scene at about 12 o'clock noon. Then followed the Seydlitz, the York, the Devonian, the La Touraine, the Narragansett, the Minneapolis, the Aslan, the Rappahannock and the Czar.

Second Explosion Thursday Night. At twenty minutes to 10 on Thursday night another explosion occurred on the Voltorno and caused a panic among her despairing passengers and crew.

The Grosser Kurfuerst launched three boats and rescued thirty-two persons, who had been washed into or jumped into the sea. One of the rescuing lifeboats was out for six hours and was nearly lost.

All those remaining on board the Voltorno crowded together at the after end of the vessel were taken off safely after daybreak on Friday.

H. L. Lloyd, second officer of the Voltorno, was one of the heroes of the disaster. He fell from a height of twenty feet while repairing the wireless apparatus on board his vessel, but continued to fight the fire all day, and at 7 o'clock in the evening made a glorious trip to the Grosser Kurfuerst in a small boat with three others from the Voltorno. The little craft was sinking when she was picked up by one of the lifeboats from the Grosser Kurfuerst. The total number of those saved is believed to be 523.

Last Appeal From the Voltorno. London, Oct. 14.—The last message received from the commander of the steamship Voltorno before he, with his crew and passengers, abandoned the burning vessel last Friday morning, according to a wireless dispatch sent from the Carmania, was as follows:

"Cannot something be done to help us? We must abandon the ship. Her plates are buckling. Stand close, as I may have to jump for it."

Captain Francis Inch handed this to the wireless operator of the Voltorno just before the latter was driven out of his room by the flames. Soon afterward the Voltorno was a raging furnace, blazing from funnel to forecastle.

The rescue of the only passenger taken on board the Carmania, Walter Trintepohl, a German, was effected by an able seaman of the Carmania's crew. His name is Heighway, and, according to the dispatch, he, seeing that the efforts of those who were trying to reach the man struggling in the water from ladders hanging down the ship's side were useless, dived from the upper deck of the Carmania and attached a lifeline to the exhausted swimmer.

COAL TRADE GOOD

Mines in This Vicinity Show Increase of Output.

The mines of this vicinity continue to keep steadily at work and there is every prospect that this will be the condition to continue during the winter. Stocks are low and there is a scramble for coal on the part of dealers.

Continued and increasing scarcity of cars and of workers is about the only new feature of the coal mining situation. Car supply has shrunk appreciably in all districts, due in part to a wider distribution of consignments to small dealers, who have been dilatory in releasing them for re-service, and to increased demand from wider areas of territory, which keeps cars away from their home roads, says the Black Diamond. Men are scarce largely because there is a greater desire to get maximum outputs in response to feverish demand for coal and because at a large number of mines conditions have arisen among the workmen over scale constructions.—DuBois Express.

AERO RACE HONORS WRIGHT BROTHERS

Anniversary of First Flight in Heavier Than Air Machine.

New York, Oct. 14.—On the 13th of October, 1903, Wilbur Wright made his first flight in a heavier than air machine at Kitty Hawk, N. C. Not only was it Wright's first flight, but it was the first sustained flight of man.

About twenty-five aviators, all of them daring and many of them having proved to the public in more ways than one that they are not afraid of death, attracted the eyes of thousands of people in this vicinity when they went aloft to assist in the celebration of that flight made at Kitty Hawk ten years ago.

For the purpose of celebrating Wright's achievement and also to show the public what it is possible for man to do when he is in the air the Aeronautical society arranged a decennial celebration and international aviation meet, which was held at the aeronautical aerodrome at Oakwood heights, Staten Island.

The program consisted of exhibition flying, passenger carrying, military demonstrations, altitude flights, cross country flying, "the battle of roses," aviators in flight to proceed over lower bay from the field, bombarding Governors Island and the statue of Liberty with floral bombs.

There will also be a prize of $1,000 given to the winner making the fastest flight over the following course around New York city: Leave Staten Island, proceed over Lower bay, up the East river to Harlem river, to Hudson river, to Lower bay, to field and finish. The second prize will be $750 and the third $500. Silver cups and a trophy will also be presented by the Aeronautical society to the winners in addition to the above sums of money.

"ISMS" DEPLORED BY HAMILTON

Evangelist Declares Impostors Should Be Put Down

CALLS RUSSELL AN IMPOSTOR

Meetings at Glen Richey Tabernacle Grow in Interest and Are Attended by Hundreds of Residents of the Community—Prayer Meeting Continued.

There were 550 present at the Monday evening meeting at the Tabernacle at Glen Richey. Rev. Hamilton's text was the "Program of Jesus Christ." Tonight's text is "The Mead of the Night Awakening." Rev. Hamilton said: Many "isms" had grown up in John's days which the apostle found it necessary to correct. If this was necessary then how much more so in this day? We have in this country Mormonism, Dowsism, Christian Science and Spiritualism, all of which feed and fatten upon the church of Jesus Christ. Dowsism gets 97 per cent of its supporters from the Christian church. Christian Science is 3 per cent bible and 97 per cent devil.

"If Mrs. Eddie rises from the dead when she stated that she would I will eat a pole cat for my supper."

Russell an impostor. "Pastor Russell is a multi-millionaire and one of the greatest religious impostors. In one month he raised $1,500,000 in private subscriptions from his supporters. All of these are dangerous because they feed upon the church and do not try to carry out the program of Jesus Christ.

The speaker proceeded to unfold that program, namely, that Jesus Christ came to seek and save that which was lost. Mr. Hamilton held the attention of his audience, relieving the attention of listeners by illustrated stories and instances quite appropriate also interesting and mostly amusing.

The prayer meetings are to continue each day at 10 A. M., at which time the whistles blow and the church bells ring.

BROKE AN AXLE

A "Thank-You-M'am" Wrecks An Automobile on Sunday.

A meeting of the Point View Hunting club was held Sunday at the club house in Lawrence township. Among the members of the club are a number of residents from Pottsville, who came here in automobiles.

When on the return trip from the club house to Clearfield Sunday afternoon the automobile owned by the Pottsville party encountered a "thank-you-m'am" on the road and the axle was broken. The owner was obliged to leave the machine in the road until he could procure another one from the dealer.

It is said that suit will be brought against the Lawrence township supervisors for damages as a result of the accident.

FIRST HUSBAND TO HELP MRS. EATON

Still Cares For Woman Accused of Murder.

Boston, Oct. 14.—David Henry Ainsworth, the first husband of Mrs. Jennie May Harrison Eaton, the widow of Rear Admiral Joseph Giles Eaton, who is to be tried at Plymouth, Mass., on the charge of having poisoned her husband, is coming from Arizona to help and comfort his former wife.

Mrs. Ralph P. Keyes, his elder daughter, states that her father will come and do everything in his power to help her mother. Ainsworth was divorced in 1906.

"My sister Dorothy and I," said Mrs. Keyes, "will be so happy to see our father, and I feel that mamma will, too, because he can help her a great deal."

Speaking of her own troubles, Mrs. Keyes denounced the neighborhood gossip about her baby. "I want to say that my husband knows all about the baby and everything else. Any statement that it is not the daughter of Mr. Keyes is false. As soon as my mother's trial is finished I shall enter suit for divorce."

The Keyes' marriage took place on Nov. 29, 1912. Keyes is a clerk in a Boston bank and is a dozen years her senior.

The defense of Mrs. Eaton will be that the retired rear admiral killed himself by taking one of his "queer East Indian poisons." The prosecution claims that she gave him poison.

SULZER ALONE BEFORE THE VOTE

No Conference Between Accused and Attorneys.

SECRET SESSION IS HELD.

Just Decision on Question of Law, Determining Whether to Throw Out Charge of Larceny—Many Attempts to Forecast Result—Dark Future For Sulzer.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 14.—Prior to the first vote in the impeachment court Governor Sulzer continued the seclusion which he began on Saturday. He had announced he would receive no callers until after the final vote, which decides whether he retains his high office or is driven from it in disgrace, convicted of high crimes and misdemeanors—of the larceny of campaign funds and of perjury in his sworn statement of the manner in which they were expended.

Because of his firm refusal to see any callers a rumor was circulated that there had been a final break between him and his lawyers. D. Cadby Herrick, his chief counsel of record, denied the rumor. It was asserted that the attorneys remained away because they believed a personal visit would not aid the impeached governor. He realizes as well as they that only twenty votes stand between him and exile from political life. There are fifty-seven members of the court. Twenty-three are necessary to convict. Twenty votes are needed to save him.

Jury of Fifty-seven.

The fifty-seven judges resolved themselves into a jury and went into a prolonged secret session to discuss the evidence and technical points of law.

One of the first questions to be decided was whether the impeachment articles charging high crimes and misdemeanors between the date of election and his taking the oath of office were legal. There was a serious question in the minds of many senators on this point. But as a majority vote was needed to decide this question the Sulzer leaders were none too confident of having the articles thrown out.

Chief Judge Cullen votes thirteenth, and the superstitious see an evil omen in the fact that Sulzer was impeached at 5:13 in the morning on Aug. 13 and now faced a final verdict on Oct. 13.

Try to Forecast Result.

There were plenty of pretended prophets ready to tell just the result. One can meet them in the lobbies of Albany hotels and in the gloomy stone corridors of the capitol. They had "dope sheets" of the court, like sure thing gamblers at the race track picking winners.

The plain truth is that up to this hour no man has any absolute knowledge of the vote, but if preponderance of prediction and that intangible atmosphere called general opinion can be taken as casting the shadow of coming events the future is very dark for Governor Sulzer.

The voices that championed his cause are hushed, and the defenders who were on every street corner have disappeared. In their stead is heard frequently the cynical quotation from Allan Ryan's testimony, "Tell your father I am the same old Bill," or its paraphrase used by former Senator Brackett in his answer to Biblical comparison of the governor to the Apostle Paul, "Can you imagine Paul telephoning to Gamaliel, 'I am the same old Paul?'"

AMUSEMENTS

Paul Glimore.

Paul Glimore and Associated Players will appear at the New Opera House Theatre next Thursday, Oct. 16, in "The Harve," a play by H. S. Sheldon, a Danish expatriate of Chicago. It is said to be a satirical restatement of the "triangle" difficulty, presenting the man, the wife and the lover in a new and interesting light. It also is referred to as "pungent" and "intellectual."

"The Spendthrift"

At the New Opera House next Monday night theatregoers will have the opportunity of seeing the latest New York dramatic sensation, "The Spendthrift." It is from the pen of Porter Emerson Brown, whose "A Foot There Was" first brought him into prominence as a playwright.

Mr. Brown's play deals with a silly, vain, extravagant woman who is, of course, pretty, kittenish and lovable. Her sole enjoyment in life is coiled from society and she believes that her social position should be kept intact at all hazards. She loves her husband in her indolent, light, playful fashion. He is not the brain power of the machine that grinds out her money? To attempt to argue or reason with such a woman is useless. She is not, however, a bad woman, but thoughtless and selfish. Her extravagances have landed her husband in bankruptcy.

The home, the motor, the servants—all must go. To save herself, and as she believes, her husband, Richard, she borrows the necessary sum and lies to him about it. The lie arouses the suspicions of her husband. He forces a scene with the man and his wife, frightened at the upheaval she has brought about, seizes from the house. For five months she learns a hard, bitter lesson. She discovers that there are other ambitions than social honors. In fact, it is a new woman whom the husband finds in an attic room, thoroughly repentant and willing to lead the new and better life which he offers. Throughout the play, there is a pretty little love story between the wife's sister and the husband's brother, to prove the assertion that the home built on the conventions of true love and sacrifice will become the home of happiness. Louise Price will appear as the frivolous wife and Louise Lytton as the indulgent husband. Laura Tindle will be the little sister who, early in her career, discovers where true happiness lies. Agnes Wallace Villa will be Aunt Gretchen (Hetty Green dramatized), an old woman "with one foot in the grave and the other in Wall Street." Other characters are in the hands of capable actors. Seat sale opens Saturday.

523 PERSONS SAVED, SAYS ONE RESCUER

Grosser Kurfuerst Reports More Survivors.

New York, Oct. 14.—Five hundred and twenty-three persons were saved from the Voltorno, according to a wireless message received by the officers of the North German Lloyd line from the captain of the Grosser Kurfuerst, one of the steamships which answered the Voltorno's "S O S" distress signal that she was burning in mid-ocean. This is significant, as it reports two more saved than the reports of any other of the ships which answered the call. The wireless message follows:

Voltorno, Thursday, 8 a. m., calls of help from steamer. Voltorno, 4 p. m., was at point to north, 35 west. Voltorno found in total burning condition. Fire commenced with heavy explosion in bow, resulting in deaths of several passengers and crew. Eleven steamers at place of accident. Heavy northwest storm. High seas and swell. Two boats of Kurfuerst on the way at night from 9 until 11:30. Approach of wreck almost impossible. Saved during night thirty-two, at dawn additional sixty-eight. Voltorno sent boat with five men. Were taken on board. Boat immediately sank. Saved by Kurfuerst eighty-six passengers, second officer, one engineer, sixteen of crew. Total saved all ships, 523.

About 100 are missing. Carmania and Touraine searching place accident for full boats of passengers of Voltorno. Success improbable. Almost all boats of Voltorno when lowered were smashed on account of high seas. Wreck drifting; dangerous for shipping. Continued voyage 1:30 a. m. Loss of time about twenty-four hours. Survivors well taken care of and well placed. Signed. SPANGENBERG.

As soon as the doors of the Uranium Steamship company's office were thrown open scores of anxious persons hurried in to get the latest news which the line might have concerning the ill-fated Voltorno and the survivors who were rescued by the other ships.

COMING EVENTS.

Washington party state committee

General election, Nov. 4.

Deer Hunting season opens Nov. 10

closes Nov. 25.

Good evening! Have you taken

off the light ones yet?

MITCHELL'S SUPPORTERS.

In this campaign it is well for the voters to stop and think of the character of the men who are supporting the three candidates. Without descending to the level of the ward

politician who believes in personal

abuse as the most formidable weapon

in attacking opposition candidates it may be said that Oscar Mitchell has a great advantage in this contest because of the high character of those who are supporting his candidacy. The men who are working and talking for Mr. Mitchell believe that he is the personification

of those high principles which should be adhered to by the occupants of the bench in this county.

Oscar Mitchell is supported by the men who regard the office of judge

as being an exalted position to which

no man tainted with partisanship

not a partisan in the true meaning of the word. If elected he would be the judge of men of all political parties while catering to none. He would be the judge of all of the people, with no pledge or promise made to any faction or set of men to prevent him administering the law fearlessly and justly.

Oscar Mitchell is supported by the men who look upon the franchise as a sacred institution which should not be besmirched by being made the plaything of men with selfish purposes to accomplish or with vicious practices to nourish and advance. Mr. Mitchell believes that every man should be permitted to vote as his conscience dictates, not in accordance with the will of another or at the dictate of those who would debauch the ballot and make a mockery of the franchise.

Oscar Mitchell is supported by the men who feel that the interests of the people of Clearfield county would be better served and their rights and liberties better protected if a judge free from the taint of slavery to the liquor element were to be placed on the bench in Clearfield county. Mr. Mitchell has faith in the intelligence and good judgment of a majority of the voters of the county and believes that these voters will endorse at the polls the courageous declarations he has made relative to the liquor license question. On this issue alone Mr. Mitchell should attract to his candidacy every voter who knows the evils which flow from the liquor traffic.

Oscar Mitchell is supported by the men who do not approve of making the judgeship a football for selfish politicians and their friends to fight over, or that it should be regarded as the reward designating place hunters believe should be given them for their loyalty to the cause which the people look upon as detrimental to good government. Mr. Mitchell conscientiously believes that the judgeship should be placed above sordid and selfish considerations and that the people and not the warring political factions should have the right to say who shall be elected judge.

These are some of the reasons why Oscar Mitchell feels certain that when the polls are closed in November it will be found that he has won the victory. In which all good people will rejoice. Mr. Mitchell is the candidate of the plain people, and the plain people never make a mistake when they are called upon to decide elections in which their rights and privileges as American citizens are at stake. It is because the plain people are supporting him that Mr. Mitchell and his friends feel certain that he will be triumphantly elected to the office which he will fill with dignity, honor and ability.

THE SHERIFFALTY

While the voters are devoting their time and attention to the judgeship contest they should not lose sight of the fact that there are other candidates on the ticket who deserve consideration. The judge of this county is a big man and possesses much power for good or evil, but he is not the only official who is supposed to look after interests of the people. There is the sheriff, for instance. The sheriff is a quite important person in the general make up of the officials who administer the affairs of the county government.

The Washington party was fortunate in naming as its candidate for sheriff one of the best equipped residents of the county. Charles W. Frey was nominated because he was believed to be fitted for the position, and the enthusiastic manner in which his candidacy has been received by the voters of all parties augurs well for his success at the polls. From every section of the growing strength of Mr. Frey, who is recognized as a man of many sterling qualities of mind. Mr. Frey is making a vigorous fight, and the reception he gets from all classes of voters is most encouraging.

Mrs. Pankhurst may come to this country under an assumed name, but her mouth will give her away soon after she lands.

Where do the small boys get the cigarettes and cigars they may be seen smoking on the streets of this town?

The public is pleased to have the Market street bridge reopened. The structure is now perfectly safe for all kinds of travel.

The many friends of Asbury Chase Esq. hope for his quick recovery from his serious illness.

However, the license tags will not make a hunter immune from some other hunter's bullet.

The frost may be on the vegetables but it does not seem to shrink the price thereof.

MOLECULES ARE INVISIBLE.

Yet Their Tracks Through Space Can Be Discerned.

It came to be evident about the middle of the last century that, in order to explain certain facts connected with the relative weights of gases, matter must not merely consist of atoms, but that these atoms must have the power of uniting in small groups. In forming a compound, indeed, this must be so. For instance, carbonic acid gas must consist of one atom of carbon, which, along with two atoms of oxygen, forms a small group of three atoms.

The novelty of the conception was in the notion that oxygen itself in the state of gas, as it exists, for example, in the air, consists of small groups of atoms, in this case, two. To such small groups of atoms was given the name molecules. A molecule is that portion of a substance which can exist in the free state, as oxygen does in air. An atom generally exists in combination but atoms may and sometimes do exist separately in which case they also are termed molecules.

Now, can molecules be seen? In their existence a mere assumption? The answer to that question is No, they can not be seen but artificial molecules can be made which correspond closely in their behavior to real molecules that the existence of real molecules is practically certain. Moreover, although no one has ever seen a molecule, still the track of a molecule moving through space has been seen, and, just as Robinson Crusoe was right in inferring the existence of man Friday from his footprint imprinted in the sand, so the real existence of a molecule may just as certainly be inferred from the track it leaves—Sir William Ramsay in Harper's.

Lubricant For Aluminum.
Many discharges, especially those employed in the motor engineering industry, are frequently called upon to work in aluminum. To satisfactorily do this work various lubricants have been tried, which, however, owing to their volatility, are of little use. A suitable lubricant is tallow or cobbler's wax. This latter does not dissolve quickly and consequently does not flow as freely as the volatile oil-American Machinist.

WARNING SENT TO MEXICAN LEADER

Message From President and Secretary Bryan.

FAITH IN LIND'S SUCCESS.

Administration Looks With Displeas-
ure on Any Injury to Mexican Deputies Now Under Arrest—Continues Policies in Force and Maintains Naval Patrol—Situation Borders on Anarchy.

Washington, Oct. 14.—Strong representations have been made to the Mexican government by Secretary Bryan
looking to the safety of the 110 members of the Mexican chamber of deputies imprisoned by the order of President Huerta. Official circles say that prospects for a constitutional election in Mexico on Oct. 21 which would meet with the approval of the United States have been lessened by arbitrary
arrests of the opponents of Huerta.

For the present at least the administration will continue the policy announced by the president in congress
in August, and the navy patrol maintained at the principal Mexican ports
will continue indefinitely, notwithstanding the refusal of the Mexican government to extend the permits giving for the original patrol.

So far as the movements and activities of John Lind, the personal representative of the president, are concerned, President Wilson is leaving both to the judgment of Mr. Lind. Except in case of extreme emergency, Mr. Lind is not expected to reappear again in Mexico City so long as the Huerta
regime holds sway. Mr. Lind will confer on any matter relating to his original mission in Mexico, provided the Mexican government is prepared in good faith to meet the demands announced by Mr. Lind.

The state department is acting
through Nelson O'Shaughnessy, charge
d'affaires at Mexico City.

Administration officials regard the situation in Mexico, as a result of the seizure of the deputies, as bordering on anarchy. That the action of President Huerta in this particular exceeded the wildest flights of speculation in official circles was admitted in high sources.
Secretary Bryan reached Washington
and sent to the president dispatches
from Mexico City. He also conferred with the president and is awaiting additional dispatches before formulating
any new policy.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 14.—Ralph

tion of grafting a piece of his shinbone into his spine.

A year ago he injured his spine by falling in a bathtub. He apparently recovered, but some months later again suffered spinal injuries while playing baseball. An operation then was decided upon. The patient has so far recovered as to be able to walk about the hospital grounds.

Cookery Points

Old Housewife's Pickling Recipes.
An old housekeeper noted for the good things which are concocted in her own kitchen lays down the following laws for pickling, and all who would learn should profit by her instruction:
One—Use none but the best cider vinegar.
Two—Use porcelain lined kettles.
Three—Keep pickles well covered with vinegar.
Four—If you use ground spices, tie them up in thin muslin bags.
Five—Sweet pickles should be rich and sufficiently cooked to keep without being sealed.
Six—Nasturtiums or small pieces of horseradish thrown in each jar prevents the vinegar from molding.

Our grandmothers used to make what they called "oil pickles," and their recipe is worthy of being handed down to posterity:

To fifty small cucumbers, sliced, add one teaspoonful of salt and let stand three hours, then drain carefully. Add one quart of small onions, also sliced; one-half cupful of celery seed, one cupful of white mustard seed and a small pinch of pulverized alum. Mix well and then add one teaspoonful of the best salad oil and gradually enough vinegar to make the pickle sufficiently moist.

Tomato ketchup retains its pristine popularity, and an uncooked variety, said to be excellent, is very simply made. The ingredients are: Four quarts ripe tomatoes, chopped fine and drained slightly; one cupful of chopped onion, one cupful of celery, two red peppers and one green one, chopped rather fine; one-half cupful, each of salt and mustard seed, one cupful of sugar, one-half teaspoonful each of black pepper and mace, two teaspoonfuls each of cinnamon and cloves and one quart of cider vinegar. These should be mixed well and then sealed up in glass jars.

Plum ketchup is another delicacy suggested by the abundance of the fruit. To two quarts of tart plums add two pounds of sugar and two cupfuls of vinegar, also one-half teaspoonful each of black pepper and salt one teaspoonful of clove and one tablespoonful of cinnamon. This mixture should be cooked together until soft, strained through a colander and then boiled until the consistency of cream is attained.

Bordeaux sauce is another of the winter table delicacies. A good housekeeper gives us the following recipe:

Slice and drain two quarts of green tomatoes. Add four quarts sliced cabbage, six onions, three red peppers, one-half ounce each of celery seed, whole cloves and whole peppers two ounces of white mustard seed, six cupfuls of sugar, one-half cupful of salt and eight cupfuls of vinegar. The mixture should be boiled for an hour and a half, or longer if not thick enough at the end of that time, and then put into jars and sealed.

Dishes For Invalids.
Beef Tea—Take a piece of beef from the round, remove all fat and gristle, cut into small bits and put into a glass bottle. Cover the meat with cold water and place a cork in the bottle, then place the bottle in a kettle of cold water and let it come to a boil and boil until the meat in the bottle becomes almost white. By this time the meat juice will have been extracted. Strain and salt to taste.

CAPTAIN INGH.

Commander of Burned
Volturno Was Last Person
To Leave the Doomed Ship.

Late reports indicated that Captain Ingh of the Volturno was the last person to leave the burning vessel, remaining at his post until all vestige of hope of saving other persons was doomed. He reports that 510 persons were saved, while revised estimates of the number dead is placed at 186. The sole survivor on board the Carmania told a terrible story of panic, cowardice, heroism and self sacrifice during the rescue of the immigrants by the "International rescue squadron."

Lemonade—To the juice of one large lemon and two level tablespoonfuls of sugar; pour over this one and a quarter cupfuls of water, strain and set on ice to chill. Serve this with a little shaved ice and add a thin slice of lemon to the tumbler. Where the sick person requires frequent servings of lemonade it might be well sometimes to add a couple of sprigs of mint to the glass. This makes it look appetizing and where the flavor is liked gives a little added zest to the patient in drinking it.

Wine Jelly—Soak two teaspoonfuls of granulated gelatin in two tablespoonfuls of cold water. Place in a saucepan on the fire in a scant tablespoonful of boiling water one thick slice of lemon and one tablespoonful of sugar. Let boil together for two or three minutes, then strain and squeeze the juice of the lemon into the strained liquid. Add to this the dissolved gelatin together with two tablespoonfuls of sherry. Pour into individual molds and let harden.

Pineapple Egnog—To one new laid egg, slightly beaten, add two tablespoonfuls of water, two of lemon juice and two of fresh pineapple juice. Strain the mixture over shaved ice and sweeten to taste. Variety can be given to egnogs from day to day by using different fruit flavors from one's homemade store. Another drink that is usually acceptable in a sickroom, where allowed, is made by mixing three-quarters of a cupful of lemonade with one-quarter of a cupful of grape juice and serving it with shaved ice.

To Give White of Egg—When white of egg is prescribed for an invalid it may be served by putting into a glass two tablespoonfuls of lemon or orange juice or grape juice, then adding the stiffly beaten white and a little shaved ice. A sprinkling of sugar or a bit of nutmeg may be put over the top.

Faces Charge of Murder
By Giving Him Poison.

© 1912, by American Press Association.

This photograph shows Mrs. Jennie May Eaton, on trial Tuesday for the murder of her husband, Admiral Joseph Giles Eaton, as she was leaving a courtroom. The government contends that Mrs. Eaton gave poison to the rear admiral with his meals at their home in Assinippi, near Boston. The defense says that he died from drugs self administered. So far as known the government officials have been unsuccessful in their search for the original container of the poison, the place where it was bought and the purchaser. The motive of the alleged crime remains a mystery also.

Suicide 2,000 Feet in Air.

Oran, Algeria, Oct. 14.—One of the most dramatic cases of suicide on record came to light here at the inquest into the death of Justin Soubelland, a military aviator. The evidence showed that Soubelland, after ascending 2,000 feet in his monoplane, shot and killed himself. The machine, with no one to control it, fell to earth.

FIRE ON SHIP DUE TO AN EXPLOSION

Fifty Passengers and Crew Killed in Outbreak.

LIFEBOATS WERE SMASHED.

Two Boats That Got Away From Burning Liner Still Missing—Last Appeal From Captain Inch—Able Seaman Rescued Sole Survivor on Carmania. Reports 523 Saved.

On Board the North-German Lloyd Steamship Grosser Kurfuerst (by wireless telegraph to Cape Race), Oct. 14.—With 105 survivors on board from the steamship Voltorno, burned to the water's edge during a gale in mid-Atlantic and abandoned last Friday, the Grosser Kurfuerst is approaching New York.

The passengers and crew of the Grosser Kurfuerst witnessed thrilling scenes when their vessel, called by distress signals from the Voltorno, arrived in her vicinity. They found the Voltorno burning fiercely and her crew and passengers helpless in the heavy seas. It was learned by wireless messages from the burning vessel that the fire had been started by an explosion in the forward hold at 7 o'clock on Thursday morning, ship's time.

On the arrival of the Grosser Kurfuerst the flames from the hold of the Voltorno were leaping eighty feet into the air through the hatchway, and it was learned that fifty or more of the Voltorno's crew and steerage passengers had been killed by the explosion and the fire.

Six boats were lowered immediately afterward from the Voltorno's davits, and three of them, still empty, were smashed to pieces against the vessel's side. Another, with forty passengers on board, capsized while being launched, and all were lost. The two others, with from sixty to eighty passengers on board, got away, but apparently were lost.

Altogether twelve steamships were brought by the wireless distress signals within hail of the Voltorno. The Cunard liner Carmania was the first of these. She reached the scene at about 12 o'clock noon. Then followed the Seydlitz, the York, the Devonian, the La Touraine, the Narragansett, the Minneapolis, the Aslan, the Rappahannock and the Czar.

Second Explosion Thursday Night. At twenty minutes to 10 on Thursday night another explosion occurred on the Voltorno and caused a panic among her despairing passengers and crew.

The Grosser Kurfuerst launched three boats and rescued thirty-two persons, who had been washed into or jumped into the sea. One of the rescuing lifeboats was out for six hours and was nearly lost.

All those remaining on board the Voltorno crowded together at the after end of the vessel were taken off safely after daybreak on Friday.

H. L. Lloyd, second officer of the Voltorno, was one of the heroes of the disaster. He fell from a height of twenty feet while repairing the wireless apparatus on board his vessel, but continued to fight the fire all day, and at 7 o'clock in the evening made a glorious trip to the Grosser Kurfuerst in a small boat with three others from the Voltorno. The little craft was sinking when she was picked up by one of the lifeboats from the Grosser Kurfuerst. The total number of those saved is believed to be 523.

Last Appeal From the Voltorno. London, Oct. 14.—The last message received from the commander of the steamship Voltorno before he, with his crew and passengers, abandoned the burning vessel last Friday morning, according to a wireless dispatch sent from the Carmania, was as follows:

"Cannot something be done to help us? We must abandon the ship. Her plates are buckling. Stand close, as I may have to jump for it."

Captain Francis Inch handed this to the wireless operator of the Voltorno just before the latter was driven out of his room by the flames. Soon afterward the Voltorno was a raging furnace, blazing from funnel to forecastle.

The rescue of the only passenger taken on board the Carmania, Walter Trintopohl, a German, was effected by an able seaman of the Carmania's crew. His name is Heighway, and, according to the dispatch, he, seeing that the efforts of those who were trying to reach the man struggling in the water from ladders hanging down the ship's side were useless, dived from the upper deck of the Carmania and attached a lifeline to the exhausted swimmer.

COAL TRADE GOOD

Mines in This Vicinity Show Increase of Output.

The mines of this vicinity continue to keep steadily at work and there is every prospect that this will be the condition to continue during the winter. Stocks are low and there is a scramble for coal on the part of dealers.

Continued and increasing scarcity of cars and of workers is about the only new feature of the coal mining situation. Car supply has shrunk appreciably in all districts, due in part to a wider distribution of consignments to small dealers, who have been dilatory in releasing them for re-service, and to increased demand from wider areas of territory, which keeps cars away from their home roads, says the Black Diamond.

Men are scarce largely because there is a greater desire to get maximum outputs in response to feverish demand for coal and because at a large number of mines conditions have arisen among the workmen over scale constructions.—DuBois Express.

AERO RACE HONORS WRIGHT BROTHERS

Anniversary of First Flight in Heavier Than Air Machine.

New York, Oct. 14.—On the 13th of October, 1903, Wilbur Wright made his first flight in a heavier than air machine at Kitty Hawk, N. C. Not only was it Wright's first flight, but it was the first sustained flight of man.

About twenty-five aviators, all of them daring and many of them having proved to the public in more ways than one that they are not afraid of death, attracted the eyes of thousands of people in this vicinity when they went aloft to assist in the celebration of that flight made at Kitty Hawk ten years ago.

For the purpose of celebrating Wright's achievement and also to show the public what it is possible for man to do when he is in the air the Aeronautical society arranged a decennial celebration and international aviation meet, which was held at the aeronautical aerodrome at Oakwood heights, Staten Island.

The program consisted of exhibition flying, passenger carrying, military demonstrations, altitude flights, cross country flying, "the battle of roses," aviators in flight to proceed over lower bay from the field, bombarding Governors Island and the statue of Liberty with floral bombs.

There will also be a prize of $1,000 given to the winner making the fastest flight over the following course around New York city: Leave Staten Island, proceed over Lower bay, up the East river to Harlem river, to Hudson river, to Lower bay, to field and finish. The second prize will be $750 and the third $500. Silver cups and a trophy will also be presented by the Aeronautical society to the winners in addition to the above sums of money.

"ISMS" DEPLORED BY HAMILTON

Evangelist Declares Impostors Should Be Put Down

CALLS RUSSELL AN IMPOSTOR

Meetings at Glen Richey Tabernacle Grow in Interest and Are Attended by Hundreds of Residents of the Community—Prayer Meeting Continued.

There were 550 present at the Monday evening meeting at the Tabernacle at Glen Richey. Rev. Hamilton's text was the "Program of Jesus Christ." Tonight's text is "The Mead of the Night Awakening." Rev. Hamilton said: Many "isms" had grown up in John's days which the apostle found it necessary to correct. If this was necessary then how much more so in this day? We have in this country Mormonism, Dowsyism, Christian Science and Spiritualism, all of which feed and fatten upon the church of Jesus Christ. Dowsyism gets 97 per cent of its supporters from the Christian church. Christian Science is 3 per cent bible and 97 per cent devil.

Russell an Imposter.

"Pastor Russell is a multi-millionaire and one of the greatest religious impostors. In one month he raised $1,500,000 in private subscriptions from his supporters. All of these are dangerous because they feed upon the church and do not try to carry out the program of Jesus Christ."

The speaker proceeded to unfold that program, namely, that Jesus Christ came to seek and save that which was lost. Mr. Hamilton held the attention of his audience, relieving the attention of listeners by illustrated stories and instances quite appropriate also interesting and mostly amusing.

The prayer meetings are to continue each day at 10 A. M., at which time the whistles blow and the church bells ring.

BROKE AN AXLE

A "Thank-You-M'am" Wrecks An Automobile on Sunday.

A meeting of the Point View Hunting club was held Sunday at the club house in Lawrence township. Among the members of the club are a number of residents from Pottsville, who came here in automobiles.

When on the return trip from the club house to Clearfield Sunday afternoon the automobile owned by the Pottsville party encountered a "thank-you-m'am" on the road and the axle was broken. The owner was obliged to leave the machine in the road until he could procure another one from the dealer.

It is said that suit will be brought against the Lawrence township supervisors for damages as a result of the accident.

FIRST HUSBAND TO HELP MRS. EATON

Still Cares For Woman Accused of Murder.

Boston, Oct. 14.—David Henry Ainsworth, the first husband of Mrs. Jennie May Harrison Eaton, the widow of Rear Admiral Joseph Giles Eaton, who is to be tried at Plymouth, Mass., on the charge of having poisoned her husband, is coming from Arizona to help and comfort his former wife.

Mrs. Ralph P. Keyes, his elder daughter, states that her father will come and do everything in his power to help her mother. Ainsworth was divorced in 1906.

"My sister Dorothy and I," said Mrs. Keyes, "will be so happy to see our father, and I feel that mamma will, too, because he can help her a great deal."

Speaking of her own troubles, Mrs. Keyes denounced the neighborhood gossip about her baby. "I want to say that my husband knows all about the baby and everything else. Any statement that it is not the daughter of Mr. Keyes is false. As soon as my mother's trial is finished I shall enter suit for divorce."

The Keyes' marriage took place on Nov. 29, 1912. Keyes is a clerk in a Boston bank and is a dozen years her senior.

The defense of Mrs. Eaton will be that the retired rear admiral killed himself by taking one of his "queer East Indian poisons." The prosecution claims that she gave him poison.

SULZER ALONE BEFORE THE VOTE

No Conference Between Accused and Attorneys.

SECRET SESSION IS HELD.

Just Decision on Question of Law, Determining Whether to Throw Out Charge of Larceny—Many Attempts to Forecast Result—Dark Future For Sulzer.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 14.—Prior to the first vote in the impeachment court Governor Sulzer continued the seclusion which he began on Saturday. He had announced he would receive no callers until after the final vote, which decides whether he retains his high office or is driven from it in disgrace, convicted of high crimes and misdemeanors—of the larceny of campaign funds and of perjury in his sworn statement of the manner in which they were expended.

Because of his firm refusal to see any callers a rumor was circulated that there had been a final break between him and his lawyers. D. Cady Herick, his chief counsel of record, denied the rumor. It was asserted that the attorneys remained away because they believed a personal visit would not aid the impeached governor. He realizes as well as they that only twenty votes stand between him and exile from political life. There are fifty-seven members of the court. Twenty-three are necessary to convict. Twenty votes are needed to save him.

Jury of Fifty-seven. The fifty-seven judges resolved themselves into a jury and went into a prolonged secret session to discuss the evidence and technical points of law.

One of the first questions to be decided was whether the impeachment articles charging high crimes and misdemeanors between the date of election and his taking the oath of office were legal. There was a serious question in the minds of many senators on this point. But as a majority vote was needed to decide this question the Sulzer leaders were none too confident of having the articles thrown out.

Chief Judge Cullen votes thirteenth, and the superstitious see an evil omen in the fact that Sulzer was impeached at 5:13 in the morning on Aug. 13 and now faced a final verdict on Oct. 13.

Try to Forecast Result.

There were plenty of pretended prophets ready to tell just the result. One can meet them in the lobbies of Albany hotels and in the gloomy stone corridors of the capitol. They had "dope sheets" of the court, like sure thing gamblers at the race track picking winners.

The plain truth is that up to this hour no man has any absolute knowledge of the vote, but if preponderance of prediction and that intangible atmosphere called general opinion can be taken as casting the shadow of coming events the future is very dark for Governor Sulzer.

The voices that championed his cause are hushed, and the defenders who were on every street corner have disappeared. In their stead is heard frequently the cynical quotation from Allan Ryan's testimony, "Tell your father I am the same old Bill," or its paraphrase used by former Senator Brackett in his answer to Biblical comparison of the governor to the Apostle Paul, "Can you imagine Paul telephoning to Gamaliel, 'I am the same old Paul?'"

Case Continued.

AMUSEMENTS

Paul Glimore. Paul Glimore and Associated Players will appear at the New Opera House Theatre next Thursday, Oct. 16, in "The Harve," a play by H. S. Sheldon, a Danish expatriate of Chicago. It is said to be a satiric restatement of the "triangle" difficulty, presenting the man, the wife and the lover in a new and interesting light. It also is referred to as "pungent" and "intellectual."

"The Spendthrift"

At the New Opera House next Monday night theatregoers will have the opportunity of seeing the latest New York dramatic sensation, "The Spendthrift." It is from the pen of Porter Emerson Brown, whose "A Foot There Was" first brought him into prominence as a playwright.

Mr. Brown's play deals with a silly, vain, extravagant woman who is, of course, pretty, kittenish and lovable. Her sole enjoyment in life is coiled from society and she believes that her social position should be kept intact at all hazards. She loves her husband in her indolent, light, playful fashion. He is not the brain power of the machine that grinds out her money? To attempt to argue or reason with such a woman is useless. She is not, however, a bad woman, but thoughtless and selfish. Her extravagances have landed her husband in bankruptcy.

The home, the motor, the servants—all must go. To save herself, and as she believes, her husband, Richard, she borrows the necessary sum and lies to him about it. The lie arouses the suspicions of her husband. He forces a scene with the man and his wife, frightened at the upheaval she has brought about, seizes from the house. For five months she learns a hard, bitter lesson. She discovers that there are other ambitions than social honors. In fact, it is a new woman whom the husband finds in an attic room, thoroughly repentant and willing to lead the new and better life which he offers. Throughout the play, there is a pretty little love story between the wife's sister and the husband's brother, to prove the assertion that the home built on the conventions of true love and sacrifice will become the home of happiness. Louise Price will appear as the frivolous wife and Louise Lytton as the indulgent husband. Laura Tindle will be the little sister who, early in her career, discovers where true happiness lies. Agnes Wallace Villa will be Aunt Gretchen (Hetty Green dramatized), an old woman "with one foot in the grave and the other in Wall Street." Other characters are in the hands of capable actors. Seat sale opens Saturday.

523 PERSONS SAVED, SAYS ONE RESCUER

Grosser Kurfuerst Reports More Survivors.

New York, Oct. 14.—Five hundred and twenty-three persons were saved from the Voltorno, according to a wireless message received by the officers of the North German Lloyd line from the captain of the Grosser Kurfuerst, one of the steamships which answered the Voltorno's "S O S" distress signal that she was burning in mid-ocean. This is significant, as it reports two more saved than the reports of any other of the ships which answered the call. The wireless message follows:

Voltorno, Thursday, 8 a. m., calls of help from steamer Voltorno, 4 p. m., was at point to north, 35 west. Voltorno found in total burning condition. Fire commenced with heavy explosion in bow, resulting in deaths of several passengers and crew. Eleven steamers at place of accident. Heavy northwest storm. High seas and swell. Two boats of Kurfuerst on the way at night from 9 until 11:30. Approach of wreck almost impossible. Saved during night thirty-two, at dawn additional sixty-eight. Voltorno sent boat with five men. Were taken on board. Boat immediately sank. Saved by Kurfuerst eighty-six passengers, second officer, one engineer, sixteen of crew. Total saved all ships, 523.

About 100 are missing. Carmania and Touraine searching place accident for full boats of passengers of Voltorno. Success improbable. Almost all boats of Voltorno when lowered were smashed on account of high seas. Wreck drifting; dangerous for shipping. Continued voyage 1:30 a. m. Loss of time about twenty-four hours. Survivors well taken care of and well placed. Signed. SPANGENBERG.

As soon as the doors of the Uranium Steamship company's office were thrown open scores of anxious persons hurried in to get the latest news which the line might have concerning the ill-fated Voltorno and the survivors who were rescued by the other ships.

COMING EVENTS.

Washington party state committee

General election, Nov. 4.

Deer Hunting season opens Nov. 10

closes Nov. 25.

Good evening! Have you taken

off the light ones yet?

MITCHELL'S SUPPORTERS.

In this campaign it is well for

the voters to stop and think of the character of the men who are supporting the three candidates. Without

descending to the level of the ward

politician who believes in personal

abuse as the most formidable weapon

in attacking opposition candidates it may be said that Oscar Mitchell has a great advantage in this

contest because of the high character of those who are supporting his

candidacy. The men who are working and talking for Mr. Mitchell believe that he is the personification

of those high principles which should be adhered to by the occupants of the bench in this county.

Oscar Mitchell is supported by the

men who regard the office of judge

as being an exalted position to which

not a partisan in the true meaning of the word. If elected he would be the judge of men of all political parties while catering to none. He would be the judge of all of the people, with no pledge or promise made to any faction or set of men to prevent him administering the law fearlessly and justly.

Oscar Mitchell is supported by the men who look upon the franchise as a sacred institution which should not be besmirched by being made the plaything of men with selfish purposes to accomplish or with vicious practices to nourish and advance. Mr. Mitchell believes that every man should be permitted to vote as his conscience dictates, not in accordance with the will of another or at the dictate of those who would debauch the ballot and make a mockery of the franchise.

Oscar Mitchell is supported by the men who feel that the interests of the people of Clearfield county would be better served and their rights and liberties better protected if a judge free from the taint of slavery to the liquor element were to be placed on the bench in Clearfield county. Mr. Mitchell has faith in the intelligence and good judgment of a majority of the voters of the county and believes that these voters will endorse at the polls the courageous declarations he has made relative to the liquor license question. On this issue alone Mr. Mitchell should attract to his candidacy every voter who knows the evils which flow from the liquor traffic.

Oscar Mitchell is supported by the men who do not approve of making the judgeship a football for selfish politicians and their friends to fight over, or that it should be regarded as the reward designating place hunters believe should be given them for their loyalty to the cause which the people look upon as detrimental to good government. Mr. Mitchell conscientiously believes that the judgeship should be placed above sordid and selfish considerations and that the people and not the warring political factions should have the right to say who shall be elected judge.

These are some of the reasons why Oscar Mitchell feels certain that when the polls are closed in November it will be found that he has won the victory. In which all good people will rejoice. Mr. Mitchell is the candidate of the plain people, and the plain people never make a mistake when they are called upon to decide elections in which their rights and privileges as American citizens are at stake. It is because the plain people are supporting him that Mr. Mitchell and his friends feel certain that he will be triumphantly elected to the office which he will fill with dignity, honor and ability.

While the voters are devoting their time and attention to the judgeship contest they should not lose sight of the fact that there are other candidates on the ticket who deserve consideration. The judge of this county is a big man and possesses much power for good or evil, but he is not the only official who is supposed to look after interests of the people. There is the sheriff, for instance. The sheriff is a quite important person in the general make up of the officials who administer the affairs of the county government.

The Washington party was fortunate in naming as its candidate for sheriff one of the best equipped residents of the county. Charles W. Frey was nominated because he was believed to be fitted for the position, and the enthusiastic manner in which his candidacy has been received by the voters of all parties augurs well for his success at the polls. From every section of the growing strength of Mr. Frey, who is recognized as a man of many sterling qualities of mind. Mr. Frey is making a vigorous fight, and the reception he gets from all classes of voters is most encouraging.

Mrs. Pankhurst may come to this country under an assumed name, but her mouth will give her away soon after she lands.

Where do the small boys get the cigarettes and cigars they may be seen smoking on the streets of this town?

The public is pleased to have the Market street bridge reopened. The structure is now perfectly safe for all kinds of travel.

The many friends of Asbury Chase Esq. hope for his quick recovery from his serious illness.

However, the license tags will not make a hunter immune from some other hunter's bullet.

The frost may be on the vegetables but it does not seem to shrink the price thereof.

MOLECULES ARE INVISIBLE.

Yet Their Tracks Through Space Can Be Discerned.

It came to be evident about the middle of the last century that, in order to explain certain facts connected with the relative weights of gases, matter must not merely consist of atoms, but that these atoms must have the power of uniting in small groups. In forming a compound, indeed, this must be so. For instance, carbonic acid gas must consist of one atom of carbon, which, along with two atoms of oxygen, forms a small group of three atoms.

The novelty of the conception was in the notion that oxygen itself in the state of gas, as it exists, for example, in the air, consists of small groups of atoms, in this case, two. To such small groups of atoms was given the name molecules. A molecule is that portion of a substance which can exist in the free state, as oxygen does in air. An atom generally exists in combination but atoms may and sometimes do exist separately in which case they also are termed molecules.

Now, can molecules be seen? Is their existence a mere assumption? The answer to that question is No, they can not be seen but artificial molecules can be made which correspond exactly in their behavior to real molecules that the existence of real molecules is practically certain. Moreover, although no one has ever seen a mole-cule, still the track of a molecule moving through space has been seen, and, just as Robinson Crusoe was right in inferring the existence of man Friday from his footprint imprinted in the sand, so the real existence of a mole-cule may just as certainly be inferred from the track it leaves—Sir William

Lubricant For Aluminium.
Many discharges, especially those employed in the motor engineering industry, are frequently called upon to work in aluminium. To satisfactorily do this work various lubricants have been tried, which, however, owing to their volatility, are of little use. A suitable lubricant is tallow or cobbler's wax. This latter does not dissolve quickly and consequently does not flow as freely as the volatile aluminium Machinist.

WARNING SENT TO MEXICAN LEADER

Message From President and Secretary Bryan.

FAITH IN LIND'S SUCCESS.

Administration Looks With Displeas-
ure on Any Injury to Mexican Deputies Now Under Arrest—Continues
Policies in Force and Maintains Naval
Patrol—Situation Borders on Anarchy.

Washington, Oct. 14.—Strong representations have been made to the Mexican government by Secretary Bryan
looking to the safety of the 110 members of the Mexican chamber of deputies imprisoned by the order of President Huerta. Official circles say that prospects for a constitutional election
in Mexico on Oct. 21 which would meet with the approval of the United States have been lessened by arbitrary
arrests of the opponents of Huerta.

For the present at least the administration will continue the policy announced by the president in congress
in August, and the navy patrol maintained at the principal Mexican ports
will continue indefinitely, notwithstanding the refusal of the Mexican government to extend the permits giving for the original patrol.

So far as the movements and activities of John Lind, the personal representative of the president, are concerned, President Wilson is leaving both to the judgment of Mr. Lind. Except in case of extreme emergency, Mr. Lind
is not expected to reappear again in Mexico City so long as the Huerta
regime holds sway. Mr. Lind will confer on any matter relating to his original mission in Mexico, provided the Mexican government is prepared in good faith to meet the demands announced by Mr. Lind.

The state department is acting
through Nelson O'Shaughnessy, charge
d'affaires at Mexico City.

Administration officials regard the situation in Mexico, as a result of the seizure of the deputies, as bordering on anarchy. That the action of President Huerta in this particular exceeded the
wildest flights of speculation in official
circles was admitted in high sources.
Secretary Bryan reached Washington
and sent to the president dispatches
from Mexico City. He also conferred
with the president and is awaiting additional dispatches before formulating
any new policy.

tion of grafting a piece of his shinbone

A year ago he injured his spine by falling in a bathtub. He apparently recovered, but some months later again
suffered spinal injuries while playing baseball. An operation then was decided upon. The patient has so far recovered as to be able to walk about

Cookery Points

Old Housewife's Pickling Recipes.
An old housekeeper noted for the good things which are concocted in her own kitchen lays down the following laws for pickling, and all who would learn should profit by her instruction:
One—Use none but the best cider vinegar.
Two—Use porcelain lined kettles.
Three—Keep pickles well covered with vinegar.
Four—If you use ground spices, tie them up in thin muslin bags.
Five—Sweet pickles should be rich and sufficiently cooked to keep without being sealed.
Six—Nasturtiums or small pieces of horseradish thrown in each jar prevents the vinegar from molding.

Our grandmothers used to make what they called "oil pickles," and their recipe is worthy of being handed down to posterity:

To fifty small cucumbers, sliced, add one teaspoonful of salt and let stand three hours, then drain carefully. Add one quart of small onions, also sliced; one-half cupful of celery seed, one cupful of white mustard seed and a small pinch of pulverized alum. Mix well and then add one teaspoonful of the best salad oil and gradually enough vinegar to make the pickle sufficiently moist.

Tomato ketchup retains its pristine popularity, and an uncooked variety, said to be excellent, is very simply made. The ingredients are: Four quarts ripe tomatoes, chopped fine and drained slightly; one cupful of chopped onion, one cupful of chopped celery, five stalks of celery, two red peppers and one green one, chopped rather fine; one-half cupful, each of salt and mustard seed, one cupful of sugar, one-half teaspoonful each of black pepper and mace, two teaspoonfuls each of cinnamon and cloves and one quart of cider vinegar. These should be mixed well and then sealed up in glass jars.

Plum ketchup is another delicacy suggested by the abundance of the fruit. To two quarts of tart plums add two pounds of sugar and two cupfuls of vinegar, also one-half teaspoonful each of black pepper and salt one teaspoonful of clove and one tablespoonful of cinnamon. This mixture should be cooked together until soft, strained through a colander and then boiled until the consistency of cream is attained.

Bordeaux sauce is another of the winter table delicacies. A good housekeeper gives us the following recipe:

Slice and drain two quarts of green tomatoes. Add four quarts sliced cabbage, six onions, three red peppers, one-half ounce each of celery seed, whole cloves and whole peppers two ounces of white mustard seed, six cupfuls of sugar, one-half cupful of salt and eight cupfuls of vinegar. The mixture should be boiled for an hour and a half, or longer if not thick enough at the end of that time, and then put into jars and sealed.

Dishes For Invalids.
Beef Tea—Take a piece of beef from the round, remove all fat and gristle, cut into small bits and put into a glass bottle. Cover the meat with cold water and place a cork in the bottle, then place the bottle in a kettle of cold water and let it come to a boil and boil until the meat in the bottle becomes almost white. By this time the meat juice will have been extracted. Strain and salt to taste.

CAPTAIN INGH.

Commander of Burned
Volturno Was Last Person
To Leave the Doomed Ship.

Late reports indicated that Captain Ingh of the Volturno was the last person to leave the burning vessel, remaining at his post until all vestige of hope of saving other persons was doomed. He reports that 510 persons were saved, while revised estimates of the number dead is placed at 186. The sole survivor on board the Carmania told a terrible story of panic, cowardice, heroism and self sacrifice during the rescue of the immigrants by the "International rescue squadron."

Lemonade—To the juice of one large lemon and two level tablespoonfuls of sugar; pour over this one and a quarter cupfuls of water, strain and set on ice to chill. Serve this with a little shaved ice and add a thin slice of lemon to the tumbler. Where the sick person requires frequent servings of lemonade it might be well sometimes to add a couple of sprigs of mint to the glass. This makes it look appetizing and where the flavor is liked gives a little added zest to the patient in drinking it.

Wine Jelly—Soak two teaspoonfuls of granulated gelatin in two tablespoonfuls of cold water. Place in a saucepan on the fire in a scant tablespoonful of boiling water one thick slice of lemon and one tablespoonful of sugar. Let boil together for two or three minutes, then strain and squeeze the juice of the lemon into the strained liquid. Add to this the dissolved gelatin together with two tablespoonfuls of sherry. Pour into individual molds and let harden.

Pineapple Egnog—To one new laid egg, slightly beaten, add two tablespoonfuls of water, two of lemon juice and two of fresh pineapple juice. Strain the mixture over shaved ice and sweeten to taste. Variety can be given to egnogs from day to day by using different fruit flavors from one's homemade store. Another drink that is usually acceptable in a sickroom, where allowed, is made by mixing three-quarters of a cupful of lemonade with one-quarter of a cupful of grape juice and serving it with shaved ice.

To Give White of Egg—When white of egg is prescribed for an invalid it may be served by putting into a glass two tablespoonfuls of lemon or orange juice or grape juice, then adding the stiffly beaten white and a little shaved ice. A sprinkling of sugar or a bit of nutmeg may be put over the top.

By Giving Him Poison.

This photograph shows Mrs. Jennie May Eaton, on trial Tuesday for the murder of her husband, Admiral Joseph Giles Eaton, as she was leaving a courtroom. The government contends that Mrs. Eaton gave poison to the rear admiral with his meals at their home in Assinippi, near Boston. The defense says that he died from drugs self administered. So far as known the government officials have been unsuccessful in their search for the original container of the poison, the place where it was bought and the purchaser. The motive of the alleged crime remains a mystery also.
